TRADE VISITOR PROFILE

«This is the third annual instalment of Kids Russia we have visited. Despite the crisis, we see a lot of new participants here. Holding a joint licensing fair is a very interesting idea since precisely licensed goods, i.e. goods, which are popular and recognizable, are important today.»

TATYANA ARSENOVA, participant of the Buyers' Program, CEO, Avis company

«This is the first time we've taken part in the fair. Here we present only new items out of our extensive product range. In our business, preorders are placed until the end of March, which is why Kids Russia is so important for us as an opportunity to present new products and hear customer feedback.»

TRADE VISITORS FROM ALL SECTORS

Licensing World Russia

«The Russian licensing market is rather young, but a fairly promising market. For the three days of being here I've managed to get acquainted with the companies and brands, and I can safely say that what I see here are exactly the same trends, which can be seen at foreign licensing fairs. I believe that with such tempos of growth and development, Russian brands have excellent chances of winning the world as Masha and the Bear themed products have already done.»

REBECCA ASH, editorial director, Total Licensing

«This is Russia's key licensing fair. It has become the place where everyone who has anything to do with licenses can find out what is going on the licensing market. Also coming here are new companies, which are for the first time eyeing the opportunity of dealing in licensed products. This year the number of such companies was 10% larger than a year ago.»

PETYA TONCHEVA, licensing director for Russia, CIS, Ukraine and the Baltic States, Nickelodeon Viacom Consumer Products
